

Modern Slavery Act Statement

Introduction from Julia Tyson
Chief Human Resources Officer

Lloyd's is committed to being a responsible global corporate citizen by adopting ethical principles and practices, sharing knowledge and expertise, and making a positive contribution to social and environmental issues.

We support the principles set out in the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the International Labour Organisation core labour standards. Lloyd's is also a signatory to the United Nations Global Compact and is committed to operating in a way that, as a minimum, meets fundamental responsibilities in the areas of human rights and labour, as well as environment and anti-corruption.

We recognise that modern slavery is a crime and a violation of fundamental human rights. It can take various forms including: slavery, servitude, forced and compulsory labour and human trafficking. Lloyd's has a zero-tolerance approach to modern slavery and we are committed to being a responsible business in all our dealings and relationships; this includes improving business practices, systems and controls to combat slavery and human trafficking.

Structure of Lloyd's

Lloyd's is the world's leading insurance and reinsurance marketplace. The Corporation of Lloyd's oversees and supports the Lloyd's market, ensuring it operates efficiently and retains its reputation as the market of choice for specialist insurance and reinsurance risk.

- Agreeing syndicates' business plans and evaluating performance against those plans;
- Monitoring syndicates' compliance with Lloyd's minimum operating standards;
- Continuing to raise standards and improve performance across two key areas:

Our supply chains

Our supply chain comprises a global supplier base, providing a wide range of products and services.

Lloyd's is committed to the highest professional standards and ethics, and we expect the same high standards from the parties we work with.

Our aim is to work collaboratively with our supply chain partners to uphold high standards of conduct around safe working conditions, treating workers with dignity and respect and acting fairly and ethically.

Supplier due diligence

The Corporation's suppliers are engaged in accordance with Lloyd's Procurement Policy and overseen by a central Procurement Centre of Expertise and dedicated Supplier Management team.

Our procurement process includes the vetting of new suppliers and annual risk and performance reviews of our most critical supplier relationships.

As part of the tender vetting process, suppliers are asked a series of responsible business questions which assess a supplier's position on human rights, environmental and social issues; suppliers are also asked to sign-up to Lloyd's Supplier Code of Conduct and to provide information about their responsible business approach, including: controls around anti-bribery and financial crime; their approach to diversity and inclusion; their code of conduct; and their environmental and health & safety practices.

Our policies

We are committed to ensuring transparency in our business and in our approach to tackling modern slavery and human trafficking. We continue to implement and develop appropriate policies to support our commitment to act ethically and with integrity in all our business relationships.

Employees

We fully support the principles set out in the UN's Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the International Labour Organisation core labour standards. We respect the dignity and rights of each individual who works for us and with us. This also extends to the employees of suppliers working on our sites, where we have proactively sought to improve their living standards through the Living Wage Foundation.

We have a Code of Conduct, Human Rights Policy and Speaking Up Policy, all of which are available to employees. If there are any genuine concerns about any wrongdoing or breaches of law, these concerns can be raised in confidence without fear of disciplinary action.

Our progress

This year our approach to the implementation of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 (Act) has included:

- Implementation of a supplier performance and risk management framework;
- Continued re-affirmation of our zero-tolerance approach to human rights abuses via the Supplier Code of Conduct;
- We have conducted a spot-check audit of a sample of our critical suppliers to ascertain their compliance with the legislation;
- We have refreshed our supplier tendering and onboarding processes to expand on the disclosure requirements around human slavery and trafficking;
- We have conducted a review of our supplier contract templates to ensure that they remain fit for purpose.

Next steps

We will continue to review our supply chain policies and protocols, developing specific measures to ensure that our obligations under the Act are disseminated through our supply chain. These measures will include:

- Continuing to identify and assess any key risk areas in our supply chains and strengthen our governance and controls;
- Investing in E-Procurement tools that support increased visibility and enable robust supplier screening, due diligence and monitoring;
- Extending the supplier performance and risk management framework to include assessments of modern slavery risk;
- Working collaboratively with key insurance market participants to share best practice and extend the responsible business network;
- Continuing to safeguard whistleblowers via our Whistleblowing Policy.

This statement is made pursuant to section 54(1) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and constitutes the Corporation of Lloyd's slavery and human trafficking statement for the financial year ending 31 December 2019.
